FOOD AND BEVERAGE SERVER and BANQUET SERVER (NOC 6453)

Job Definition:

Food and beverage servers take patrons’ food and beverage orders and serve the orders. They are employed in restaurants, hotels, bars, taverns, private clubs, banquet halls and similar establishments.1

Banquet servers take orders and serve food and beverage products to guests. They are employed in establishments of various types, including hotels, resorts and private clubs that specialize in catering social functions such as weddings, anniversaries and birthdays, as well as convention centres that provide food and beverage service for corporate events.2

Additional Occupational Information:

Food and beverage servers are on duty from the moment guest arrive on premises. The server steps in to look after the needs of the guests assigned to his or her care, greeting them, presenting menus, making recommendations and answering questions about food and beverage items. The server then takes orders, relays those to kitchen and bar staff, serves the meal and removes dishes as necessary. Some food and beverage servers may also, if asked by guests, recommend wines to complement the meals ordered. Throughout the whole process of a meal being ordered and served, food and beverage servers have many opportunities to enhance a guest’s comfort and enjoyment. Skilled servers work quickly and efficiently yet are also outgoing and adept at making guests feel relaxed and well looked after.3

Banquet servers often begin their duties hours before a function starts. They ensure that furniture and equipment are correctly set up. They lay out table linens, set out china and cutlery, fill water pitchers and brew coffee. They prepare items that must be on the tables when guests enter, such as salt and pepper shakers, sugar bowls, rolls and butter, salad dressings and centrepieces. When guests arrive, banquet servers act as their points of contact with the kitchen. They familiarize guests with the food and beverage options, answering questions and making recommendations. They ensure that guests with special needs are accommodated in a satisfactory manner. When asked, they may also take orders and suggest appropriate food-and-beverage pairings. During the meal, they serve food, replenish water and other beverages, maintain tables between courses and tend to the miscellaneous needs of their guests. They also ensure that the establishment complies with liquor regulations.4

Overview:

This Occupational Language Analysis (OLA) presents Canadian Language Benchmarks (CLB) competencies and typical listening, speaking, reading and writing tasks performed at a competent level by food and beverage servers and banquet servers. The tasks are illustrative only, and do not provide a complete sample of what a food and beverage server and banquet server does on the job. Other essential skills such as numeracy and computer skills are beyond the scope of the OLA. The content of the OLA was validated by people employed in the occupation and by CLB experts. It was developed by a Registered OLA Analyst using five key resources:

- the Canadian Language Benchmarks 2000, Centre for Canadian Language Benchmarks and Citizenship and Immigration Canada
- the National Occupational Standards for Food and Beverage Server, Canadian Tourism Human Resource Council, 2011
- the National Occupational Standards for Banquet Server, Canadian Tourism Human Resource Council, 2011
- the Essential Skills Profile for Food and Beverage Server, Canadian Tourism Human Resource Council, 2011

How to Read this Occupational Language Analysis:

The titles, numbers and sequence of categories are based on the Canadian Language Benchmarks 2000, which address four major skill areas Speaking, Listening, Reading and Writing. CLB competencies (language descriptors) are entered at the left margin and followed by a number indicating the benchmark level (1 - 12) for each competency. Sample occupational tasks (work/task descriptors) drawn from the Essential Skills Profile or the National Occupational Standards are indented and italicized underneath each competency and referenced to their source and specific occupation, as follows:

The number of references adds to the complexity of coding and sequencing tasks in this OLA. The general order is:

- ESP references are listed before NOS references
- Tasks within one reference are listed in sequential order (i.e., in alpha/numeric order or the order in which they appear within the document)
Comparative Ratings:
The following chart compares typical and most complex essential skills ratings for food and beverage server and banquet server based on the Essential Skills Profiles, to the corresponding range of CLB ratings, as suggested in Relating Canadian Language Benchmarks to Essential Skills: A Comparative Framework. These are general ranges and there may be some language tasks that fall outside of this range.
